ARTUR

1 by UFHO

Artur is an anagram from Ur AR Art. The name Artur derives from Roman (Artorius, King Arthur), Celtic (Artos, meaning bear), Old Norse (Arnthor, meaning eagle, and the God Thor). The last of its kind, Artur the Giant enjoys consuming Artworks, though he often seems to have digestion problems. He is happiest when people come to experience Art, where he can feast off individual's imagination, emotions and interpretation.

ROUGHLY-SEE-US

by MACHINEAST

'Roughly-See-Us' is a species that has evolved from the flower Rafflesia - but because of its evolution, it is no longer coloured red but a rainbow spectrum instead. The evolution happened due to rampant forest fires, leaving Rafflesia to grow feet in order to stay alive. It is a shy creature; thus when it stumbles upon human, it will do it's eye-catching nervous dance followed by camouflaging in its original flower form.

The weathered exterior of the structure speaks of its age. An aura of mysticism emanates from it, as an unknown force creeps past our mental barriers. At the foot of the structure there lies an angular distortion, an impossibility: The esoteric glyph and patterns invoke a sense of kinetic wonder, conveying ideas telepathically, it dances in the light as a passage etches into the empty canvas of the subconscious.
