1. OBJECTIVES OF THE PROGRAMME

This initiative is part of the National Arts Council’s ongoing efforts to:

- Support Singapore emerging literary talent via international partnerships; and
- Enable networking opportunities and cultural exchange with international counterparts, through established writer’s residencies, like Sangam House, which has a significant history of connecting writers from around the globe.

The aim of the NAC-Sangam House Residency is to provide participating writers with the time and space to write, while giving writers a chance to build a solid and influential network of personal and professional relationships that can deepen their own work, and in effect, expand and diversify literature. Their programme also facilitates interaction between the visiting writers and the local arts communities, cultivating an intersection that infuses the local communities with inspiration and new ideas, while allowing each participating writer to deepen their understanding of the diverse emotional and social climates in which literature is conceived and received.

2. ELIGIBILITY

To be eligible for this residency, applicants should:

- a) Be Singapore Citizens or Singapore Permanent Residents who are actively engaged in the literary arts industry and are published writers in Tamil.
- b) Possess a record of past achievements (at least one published book or volume, or a sizable number of works in anthologies, journals, or literary magazines), strong artistic merit, recognition among their industry peers, and commitment towards advancing the art form.
- c) Be in the process of creating an original literary work, at any stage of development.
- d) Be comfortable with cross-cultural dynamics and interested in close interaction with writers and artists from diverse cultures and backgrounds.

3. ASSESSMENT

Applications will be assessed competitively against each other, according to the following criteria:

- a) Artistic merit and potential of the applicant, based on the information provided in the application form, the curriculum vitae submitted, and the writing sample provided;
- b) The applicant's ability to undertake and commit to completing the programme; and
- c) The benefit of the proposed programme to the applicant's creative and professional development.

4. TERMS OF AWARD

About Sangam House

The word sangam in Sanskrit literally means “going together.” In most Indian languages, sangam has come to mean such confluences as the “flowing together of rivers” and “coincidence.” Likewise, the intention of Sangam House is to bring together writers from around the world to live and work in a safe, peaceful setting. Their residency programme is designed for writers who have published to some acclaim but have not yet enjoyed substantial commercial success.

Sangam also harks back to the great gatherings of poets and writers in the southern cities such as Madurai during the period of classical Tamil literature. These assemblies produced some of the subcontinent’s most exquisite poetry and provided a space for writers of all kinds to talk to each other, over generations and genres. Assembling writers from various cultural backgrounds broadens the scope of each individual’s work. Exposure to regional and national trends in literature, to multiple political and economic obstacles and varied social and cultural milieus, enhances each writer’s understanding of their work, as well as their own notions of identity and home. Sangam House recognises the dearth of such opportunities in South Asia and strives to encourage the work of those writing in all languages, regional and dominant. Such a unique environment enriches the work of its participants and the texture of international literature.

About The Jamun

The Jamun is a space to leave your mark. This spacious bungalow, set in a quiet, green lane of suburban Bangalore, offers a calm and quiet environment, along with easy access to the city centre. The Jamun hosts a variety of public programmes throughout the year, partnering with some of Bangalore’s best known arts organisations, including Sangam House, an international writer’s residency. Between November and January every year, writers from many different countries, working in numerous languages, live and work in The Jamun’s serene environment. During the residency period, Sangam House and The Jamun co-host public readings by resident writers as a way for them to connect with Bangalore’s literary community. Through its programming, The Jamun aims to be a home for vital conversations about the arts in a changing world. In addition to residencies, they regularly organise free literary talks, plays, music concerts and workshops in a number of artistic disciplines.
